

Massive Network Of ISIS Sleeper Cells Spanning United States Uncovered – Training Camps And All

How's your weekend going?

Redditor, Law School Graduate, and nimble navigator William Craddick (/u/PleadingtheYiff / brand new Twitter handle @williamcraddick) has made quite the name for himself on Reddit's "The_Donald" forum. In just three short months, Craddick has managed to rack up over 153,000 "post karma" and 48k "comment karma," which (if you're not familiar) is impressive. The guy is an incredibly effective dot-connector, perhaps owing it to his legal training – often posting lengthy reads that are well worth the investment in time. Craddick made the Clinton – Silsby – Haiti connection, which is un-refuted to the best of my knowledge.

In his latest piece, Craddick presents frightening evidence of a massive ISIS network covering the USA. Let's start with the conclusion:

Either the US government and current administration is so hopelessly incompetent that they are unable to detect domestic and foreign threats which are discoverable by investigative journalists and whistleblower organizations. Or, there are factions within the United States government who are seeking to prevent competent, well-intentioned members of the intelligence community, law enforcement, and legislative/regulatory branches from taking action against ISIS operatives and

The director of the FBI, James Comey, has stated that ISIS now has a presence in all 50 of the United States:

ABC 7 News Chicago: <https://archive.fo/OiEHM>

This presence varies in its form from state to state. It exists in the form of smaller cells attached to mosques run by radicalized imams, paramilitary groups operating out of compounds throughout the US, reinforced by veterans and command figures from ISIS' Syria theater and bolstered by recruits from American minority communities. If all the reports outlined here are in fact found to be true, ISIS has managed to amass a terrifyingly impressive network across the United States that would be capable of wreaking heavy damage in the event of a large-scale terror incident.

I. Training Camps

One of the ways ISIS has established a military presence in the US is by directly franchising out training camps that build operations centers/cells in various parts of the country. Some of these camps are public knowledge although the media has tried to hide them from the public.

At least one established network of paramilitary training camps has been public knowledge since at least the 1980's. The Jamaat ul-Fuqra, or "Muslims of America" network has run a network of camps estimated in a report from Sean Hannity to be spread across 35 different locations. The report (linked here) showed a number of Islamic jihadist style military training videos filmed at these sites in the United States. News site WND has placed the number of camps at least 22:

WND: <http://archive.is/eYGbK>

<https://i.sli.mg/nmtohh.jpg>

The Clarion Project ran a report citing FBI documents which state that in 2014 the FBI investigated the organization "...based upon specific and articulate facts giving justification to believe they are engaged in international terrorism or activities in preparation thereof..." This was due in part to an "accidental" deadly shooting that occurred in one of their compounds, Mahmoudberg, in Texas:

FBI Document: <http://www.clarionproject.org/analysis/exclusive-clarion-project-discovers-texas-terror-enclave#popup-1>

Mahmoudberg was one of several compounds located on property Jamaat ul-Fuqra had purchased in the area:

Clarion: <http://archive.is/6yjBu>

Jamaat ul-Fuqra was based in Pakistan and its leader, Mubarak Ali Gilani was directly involved in the kidnapping and murder of journalist Daniel Pearl, who was kidnapped while going to interview Gilani in Iraq. He was questioned but never arrested for the role he played:

<http://archive.is/vjwk5>

You will recall of course, that the group who carried out the murder of Pearl was Al-Qaeda in Iraq, which was the forerunner of ISIS. This indicates that ISIS has had established connections to this network in particular since at least 2002.

Hannity's report and the piece by WND both mention the fact that Jamaat ul-Fuqra has produced a video titled "Soldiers of Allah" where Gilani states:

We are fighting to destroy the enemy. We are dealing with evil at its roots and its roots are America.

Despite all of this troubling information, the Department of State does not list Jamaat ul-Fuqra as a terrorist organization. Here is a list of videos both showing footage these Islamic jihadist paramilitary groups have filmed or reports referencing them:

<https://vid.me/64tH>

<https://vid.me/Fade>

<https://vid.me/d7Fd>

<https://vid.me/4RMz>

It appears that there may be a correlation between the states where camps run by Jamaat ul-Fuqra are located and recent terror attacks which have linked to ISIS.

For example, one of the largest compounds is located in Islamburg, New York. Many of the training and propaganda films made by Jamaat ul-Fuqra are produced at this location. It is interesting that this particular location is so significant to the group when one considers terror activity in the New York/New Jersey area, such as the recent pressure cooker bombings:

The Telegraph: <https://archive.fo/hom7j>

The Telegraph: <https://archive.fo/VVGKJ>

The Washington Post: <https://archive.fo/wlzdM>

The authorities attempted to claim that the individual arrested, Ahmad Khan Rahami, acted alone and there was no cell. But that contradicts other prior reports complete with footage showing multiple other individuals who were active in the terror operation:

CNN: <https://archive.fo/kEPW1>

The "lone wolf" narrative pushed by the mainstream media is a lie in almost every single case. Wherever there is a "lone wolf" there is a bigger wolf pack nearby providing logistical and operational support. We've all seen the damage that individual attackers have caused in various terror incidents and how much chaos an entire squad of ISIS operatives such as those who perpetuated the 2015 Paris attacks can cause. Imagine what will happen when all of them decide to attack at once? The death toll in each location might potentially be in the hundreds, if not thousands.

It is also interesting to note that these pressure cooker attacks happened at the tail end of a spree of "gas leak" explosions in New York. The most

In addition to Jamaat ul-Fuqra, other Islamic groups in the United States are Dar al-Hijrah Islamic Center, the Islamic Circle of North America (ICNA), Masjid at-Taqwa (led by Siraj Wahhaj) and the Council on American-Islamic Relations (CAIR). I have not yet researched these other groups, am not alleging that they are paramilitary in nature and merely list them for referential purposes.

II. Using mosques as centers for radicalization

In addition to training camps, domestic ISIS terrorists seem to have been groomed to some extent at local mosques by extremist imams. It is of course not logistically tenable to have paramilitary wings located in every single US state. In such cases, smaller cells coordinated by handlers preaching extremist Wahabbist or Salafist Islam are a much more secure and low profile option.

Mosques in Europe have been proved to be at risk of being coopted by jihadi groups for use as operations centers. In the aftermath of the Paris terror attacks, French authorities raided a number of mosques and made more than 200 arrests, confiscating 334 weapons of which 34 were described as "war grade." The raids led to the closure of over 100 mosques in France:

Al Jazeera: <https://archive.fo/TljnV>

American security officials have also highlighted that many mosques in the United States are involved to some extent with extremism. Breitbart cited a former FBI counter-terrorism special agent as opining that as many as 75% of American mosques were used by jihadist networks:

Breitbart: <https://archive.fo/ICTe8>

The imams and mosques of specific "lone wolf" attackers in the U.S. have been suspected of having varying levels of involvement in their radicalization process. The Los Angeles cleric Roshan Zamir Abbassi who ministered to the San Bernardino terror attackers was questioned after it emerged he had exchanged a flurry of texts with attacker Syed Rizwan Farook and was allegedly lying about the fact that he knew his wife:

NY Post: <http://archive.is/YX4yw>

In a revelation suggesting evidence that mosques can and do play host to more than one radicalized attacker, it was revealed that Pulse nightclub attacker Omar Mateen and American suicide bomber Moner Abu Salha both were enrolled in the radical cleric Marcus Dwayne Robertson's Timbuktu Seminary.

Daily Mail: <https://archive.fo/indud>

Daily Mail: <https://archive.fo/1u0wv>

In the aftermath of the Pulse shooting, the imam of The Hussein Islamic Center was caught on camera calling for death to gays:

WFTV 9: <https://archive.fo/8Q2WU>

<https://vid.me/E2w8>

The imam of the Boston Marathon bombers, Abdullah Faaruq, denied radicalizing them despite videos emerging of him making fiery sermons alluding to committing acts of violence. New also surfaced that he was on the radar of groups monitoring preachers of extremism before the attacks occurred:

Fox News: <https://archive.fo/Zr1lB>

More moderate imams also spoke to the press talking about how extremist clerics had taken over many Boston mosques in recent years:

Fox News: <https://archive.fo/G6En6>

It has also been revealed in a report by The Gateway Pundit that yesterday's airport shooter, Esteban Santiago lived within walking distance of the only mosque in Alaska. As more information emerges about the cleric running this facility, will we find out that he too has a history of preaching extreme Islamic ideology?

The Gateway Pundit: <https://archive.fo/s9fsq>

III. Smuggling Syria veterans and command figures into the US

A. ISIS operatives' presence and activity are now being routinely reported at the southern US border

While developing domestic paramilitary capabilities, ISIS and groups collaborating with them are attempting to move military assets including combat veterans and command figures from the Syrian/Iraqi theaters into the West. These redeployments are likely rapidly increasing as regional and international coalitions have been closing in on their Middle East territories. ISIS movements into Europe among the refugee population are already fairly well documented. Not so well known are a growing number of reports that ISIS members are locating into the Western Hemisphere and infiltrating the United States.

In 2015, Judicial Watch ran a series of reports based on testimony from various Mexican military sources stating that ISIS was running a small camp just a few miles from the border of Texas near El Paso:

Judicial Watch: <https://archive.fo/aQkhI>

The watchdog further claimed that ISIS was paying multiple cartel organizations to smuggle members across the US border using rural smuggling routes and regional airports to avoid the U.S. Border Control:

Judicial Watch: <http://www.judicialwatch.org/blog/2015/07/mexican-cartels-smuggle-terrorists-into-u-s-through-rural-texas-border-region/>

They supported their sources with a leaked document from the Texas Department of Public Safety stating that several known members of Islamic

Judicial Watch archive: <http://www.judicialwatch.org/document-archive/statedocs/>

These reports follow a 2014 project conducted by Judicial Watch documenting the existence of an operation stretching from the southern border to Chicago being run by cartel and ISIS members to move drugs, weapons and individuals from Mexico into the US. This is especially interesting considering the fact that the recent Ft. Lauderdale attacker was Hispanic:

Judicial Watch: <https://archive.fo/2c4I8>

This year, Judicial Watch reported they had been tipped off by a Homeland Security official that cartel groups were helping multiple ISIS members, including leadership figure Shaykh Mahmood Omar Khabir, enter the United States to conduct surveillance for an attack on American soil:

Judicial Watch: <https://archive.fo/9xzZ5>

In April 2016 Khabir bragged to Italian newspaper Il Giornale that it would be easy for him to “get in with a handful of men, and kill thousands of people in Texas or in Arizona in the space of a few hours.”

Judicial Watch quoted Mexican officials who were incredulous that the Obama administration was not taking these threats more seriously.

Judicial Watch's reports were denied by Texas DPS Director Robert Bodisch. However, the language Mr. Bodisch indicates that his denial is in fact untrue, though it does not legally qualify as perjury. When confronted about the two reports that Judicial Watch had obtained from Texas DPS contradicting his statement, he merely asserted that neither he nor intelligence officials could “confirm” the reports and he did not accuse Judicial Watch of misquoting their other sources. Notice the language here: to explicitly deny the authenticity of the documents would be to make an untruthful statement, hence Bodisch's decision to merely state that he could neither confirm nor deny their authenticity. The two reports outlined plans by ISIS operatives to attack Fort Bliss, Texas, and that four of their members had been detained in Texas.

Politifact made a similarly disingenuous attempt to discredit Judicial Watch's reports. The report also cited Texas DPS officials who merely said they could neither “confirm nor deny” the documents and sources cited by Judicial Watch. In fact, officials with El Paso's Sheriff's Department expressed shock the Judicial Watch's findings, before their superiors told Politico they similarly “couldn't provide relevant information” about the report. Again, notice that no authorities have outright denied Judicial Watch's findings as to do so would be to commit perjury, especially if the official in fact had knowledge suggesting that the reports and information was in fact true. Finally, Politico cited a Border Patrol official who merely cast doubt on Judicial Watch's reports before it emerged that he had left the Border Patrol in contentious circumstances. None of this refutes the findings and reports of Judicial Watch.

B. How ISIS can cross from West Africa to the Western Hemisphere

It is, in theory, actually incredibly easy for ISIS operatives and commanders to leave the theater of war in Syria and move into the Western Hemisphere, potentially linking up with paramilitary forces located in some of the camps mentioned above. South American and Mexican drug cartels have been increasingly running drugs into West Africa using entire fleets of decrepit and unregistered cargo planes:

The Telegraph: <https://archive.fo/lvFCe>

CNN: <https://archive.fo/9p3bM>

In order to move the drugs from West Africa to their ultimate markets in Europe, narco groups have been working to smuggle them in cooperation with multiple Islamic terror groups. These terror groups benefit financially from the arrangement. Below are reports from the United Nations and Financial Action Task Force explaining these business arrangements in addition to an article from The Telegraph outlining the arrangement:

United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime: <https://archive.fo/OV4fv>

The Telegraph: <https://archive.fo/bscuT>

ISIS has known franchises in West Africa, most notably the Nigerian extremist group Boko Haram. It would be logistically possible to move assets from Syria into West Africa via their franchises in Libya and jump the Atlantic into the Western Hemisphere:

NY Times: <https://archive.fo/tivy4>

ISIS' estimated monthly income of $80–120 million USD (and that number relies only on what is public knowledge) also shows that it is financially possible for them to pay their way through Western smuggling networks. All that would be needed is the willingness to outbid competing state agencies reaching out to cartels in the hope that they will keep extremists out of the United States and the adjacent countries:

Stuff Mag New Zealand: <https://archive.fo/5rL6K>

As a final note, once ISIS members have entered the United States, it is quite easy for them to take up positions and embed themselves within Sanctuary Cities, where lax immigration laws give them a veritable free pass to move around without fear of harassment from or detection by local law enforcement.

IV. Radicalizing black American youth

There are also indications that recruitment and radicalization is occurring in various black American communities in recent years. ISIS has publicly stated its desire to recruit African Americans and exploit unrest caused by police violence incidents to increase sympathy for its cause in the black community:

Heavy: <https://archive.fo/lkYAL>

In some of their recruitment media, ISIS has actually used Black Lives Matter talking points in an attempt to convince Americans to join the organization:

Breitbart: <https://archive.fo/tXFhh>

Recently I came across a nine month long program Black Lives Matter has been running labeled as the “Youth Empowerment Strategy program at Dubai.” The stated purpose of the program is to “to empower our youth with the knowledge, skills and confidence to conduct themselves with poise and professionalism”.

Here is the website for the program in Dubai

<http://www.uvconsultants.com/youthempowerment/>

Given that it is common knowledge Saudi and UAE state groups use educational programs as a way to radicalize youth and infect them with the Wahabist ideology that breeds terrorism, what exactly is this program BLM is partnering with? Does it involve religious teaching? More research and demands for clarification from Black Lives Matter is needed to clarify that American youth are not intentionally being exposed to state agents who are radicalizing them.

It is worth remembering that George Soros funds Black Lives Matters:

Breitbart: <https://archive.fo/MFLe6>

The man who broke the Bank of England makes his money and gains control through sowing economic and political chaos. In fact, documents released by DC Leaks have proved he has used Black Lives Matter protests to further his agendas in the past. This current “educational” program and recent shifts towards extremist behavior should be alarming to many given what is known about the way he uses the organization:

The Free Thought Project: <https://archive.fo/UGxST>

V. The United States government is either negligently ignoring these facts or factions within it are attempting to prevent action from being taken to deal with ISIS

From what information is publicly available, ISIS or groups affiliated with them are creating and training paramilitary groups around the country, infiltrating American mosques to turn them into centers for radicalization and staging points for “lone wolf” style attacks and attempting to engage in recruitment and radicalization campaigns among American minority groups. It beggars belief that the United States government is not aware of these developments. In fact, Director Comey’s statement about ISIS’ presence in all 50 states implies that intelligence agencies do in fact know of this threat.

The State Department, who Wikileaks have revealed to have illegally helped Hillary Clinton delay the process of turning email records over to Congress, has tried to deny that ISIS operatives are present on the US southern border.

Fox News: <http://archive.is/WoW91>

Their claims that Judicial Watch’s reports are “unfounded” are in direct contradiction to their reports from over 10 years ago which describe Al Qaeda terrorists operating in and around Mexico in attempts to gain entry to the United States just as ISIS allegedly seeks to do now. And again, they do not explicitly deny the authenticity of the documents produced by Judicial Watch because this would legally land them in very hot water.

Other reports of government failure to tackle this apparent extremism exist as well. In 2016, the Daily Mail reported that the FBI had failed to inform American citizens that their names were present on a "kill list" of 15,000 potential targets compiled by ISIS:

Daily Mail: <https://archive.fo/Kf3lq>

There are two conclusions to draw from incidents such as this. Either the US government and current administration is so hopelessly incompetent that they are unable to detect domestic and foreign threats which are discoverable by investigative journalists and whistleblower organizations. Or, there are factions within the United States government who are seeking to prevent competent, well-intentioned members of the intelligence community, law enforcement, and legislative/regulatory branches from taking action against ISIS operatives and extremist recruits who are active both on the American border as well as in the United States.

The fact that certain agencies and news groups have engaged in legalistic denials of reports about the growing ISIS threat to the United States certainly indicate that the latter might sadly be the case.

In reply to a post by ReZn8r earlier today. I live near that small town in SW MO and I know of the place you refer to. It is a halfway house for people released from prison that work in the local chicken plants. The acronym stands for Christian Alcoholics (and Addicts) In hired about 100 or so people to do the work by hand. The subsidies from the gov for hiring "refugees" are apparently more lucrative than the cost of the maintenance men who kept those machines running. So much for robots and automation. The locals in that small town now refer to it as Mogadishu on the Elk River.

Hmmm, don't quite know what to think of the information you posted but I will give it serious thought.

The whole deal still smells. Why the displacement of the Mexicans, who in Mogadishu on the Elk River is benefiting the most from this operation, besides Simmons and Tyson of course.

Doesn't anybody even care what happened to the town? I am quite surprised this has happened considering Missouri's Southern heritage. Has all of America just dumbled the fuck down?

It's highly doubtful that we will be visiting the area anymore, but I doubt anyone cares.

Beginning in 2008 the US Federal Government began to be less protective of the interests of We the People (legal US Citizens).

By the end of 2016 the US Federal Government had become the Number 1 enemy of We the People.

I am hopeful that the tide will begin to turn in 2017.

So, he/they never heard of CIA training camps before? THESE are usually setup by 'EX' CIA personnel to give it that 'unofficial' look and feel... C'Mon guys, this is so basic, and has been going on for so long that this is ridiculous if taken at face value, so I have to assume they know, but don't want to come out and actually say it, right?

There are other 'ex'intel personnel that have been listing the addresses for some of these sites for years... there not hard to find.... essentially, they are NGO ops... same as all the other 'regime change' contenders...

Was just considering if private armies or private security firms would handle these kinds of training of foreign nationals or not. Bank may have been the first spy agency.

I imagine state dept of US gets involved with terrorists as well as special forces and CIA... It has to be a list not just CIA IMHO.

Robert Bear, ex CIA, wrote a book maybe was See No Evil about how Stations might just be 2 man operations. He was told to ignore the Weapons Runners and stay on message. Clearly there are two different CIAs on the Operational side. The Libyan Embassy compound seems to have been running weapons a few years back.

The very idea that the CIA or USAID or State department is training, funding or arming Moderate M.E. Rebels is abhorrent to freedom loving people in the West. Would Congress ever fund moderate rebels in the USA?

Great, now they have brand new weapons and Toyota Trucks for training with and when are they coming after US Citizens? Oh and we seem to have supplied them with rocket propelled grenades and maybe anti-aircraft weapons.

George Soros was involved in Training and building the Ukrainian Armed Forces after they left the Russian Federation (1991-94?). So yes corporation do get involved in geopolitics and militarization if not terrorism training.

Yes, locals in SC have known about the terrorist camp for years, but LE seems to do nothing about it. It's the only one I have ever seen in person from the outside. They do a lot of weapons training form the sounds you can hear. It's actually quite scary.

It would appear the deep state is preparing to use these Islamists at some point to launch attacks inside the US. Tools like Hitlary and Bath House take orders from these powerful individuals who we cannot identify beyond Soros, who has been placed as a point guy to get everyone's attention while others work in the dark.

What would you think of this observation?

Background:

There was a small resort town in western Missouri known for its camping and canoeing. This little town with an approximate population of 1500 depended heavily on the tourist trade to exist. Its population was mostly white Americans with a small population of Native Americans living in the country. As a kid in the 50's-60' my family took about 5 or 6 vacations there and nothing ever changed this nice little town.

I had not visited that little town in a long time but 10 years ago we went back for a visit and a few things had changed. Noticeably a large

I had not visited that little town in a long time but 20 years ago we went back for a visit and a few things had changed. Recently a large food processing plant added. My wife and I have continued to visit the area once or twice a year since we only live about 90 minutes away. I noticed over the last 6 year period that this little town was invaded by Mexicans, most likely illegal since Mexico is approximately 1000 miles away. Within a couple of years these illegals all of sudden had the money to buy and startup local business.

Now the interesting part begins. In the last 3 years I have noticed two disturbing things. First the illegal Mexicans are being displaced with Somali's to the point there are more Somali's than Mexicans. Second, approximately 15 miles west of this town, out in the middle of nowhere is a sign pointing north down a long dirt road. Written on the sign is the word CAIR. The area this CAIR sign points to is a very very unpopulated area, is in an isolated wooded country type area, and is lightly patrolled by the LEO's.

Also noticeable in the little was some of the local businesses are now own by these Somali's. This indicates that these so called poor refugees have finances to startup, buy and operate local business.

I am going to do so more research on this subject but just wondered what ZH'rs think about these observations. Am I reading to much into my observations or is something really happening.

There's lots more, but it should get you started. I think one link includes Stats on School and Aid. Also look at demographics of town on Wikipedia.

Interesting indeed.

Tyson Foods is one of the common actors in many of these things. Besides pumping us with hormone adulterated foods they are an advocate bringing in refugees, illegal immigrant labor and stand to greatly benefit financially.

There are so many related structures when I think about it. Remember Saipan Scandal of slaves and even sex slaves (Chinese Foreigners on the Island) set up to manufacture Tax Free for USA. Textiles. Many US Lobbyists, Jack Abramoff and US Congressmen. Mr. Tan was one businessman.

- NAFTA
- Cafta-DR
- FACTA, Crack Down on Foreign Banks
- Panama Papers reveal US Tax havens set up as finance centers
- Foreigners can bring in employees from home country to under cut US Businesses and Tax/benefit laws
- War on US Middle Class escalates

Bingo! I've looked into Tyson's political Contributions. I've also seen the facilities they "sponsor" in conjunction with UofA (Fayetteville AR).

Tyson, the Clinton Satan Foundation, The CIA, The FBI it all ties together and they are ALL up to no good.

I think this is the vid that ties Tyson into the plan, if not, listen to one around it.

Any research I would do will be strictly on line. But I seem to recall something about the area. It may have had ties OTC bank robbery

Any research I would do will be strictly on-line. but I seem to recall something about the area, it may have had ties UKC, bank robbers and the FBI. And then again it might be a different compound.

Thankfully, Islam is a religion of peace and Mohammad was a supporter of nonviolence and love for all mankind. Oh, yes that is true! I heard it on the BBC! You don't trust the BBC? Oh, fine. Huffington Post will back this up all the way!

What? You still don't believe that? Well then, it's magic-word time on you, buddy! "Racist! Colonialism! Slavery!"

Had enough, yet? No? Repeat after me: "ISLAM IS A RELIGION OF PEACE. ISLAM IS A RELIGION OF PEACE. ISLAM IS A RELIGION OF PEACE. ISLAM IS A RELIGION OF PEACE." Keep repeating that as you spin in a circle with your head looking straight up. As you begin to retch and vomit, keep your mouth facing skyward so that all the sick runs down your chin.

Keep saying "ISLAM IS A RELIGION OF PEACE" until you're absolutely empty of vomit and then assume the lotus position with your knees splayed on the floor. Lean forward until your head is in your crotch. This will take a lot of effort. Maybe have your neighborhood psychic or dog-walker help you with this step.

Ok! Excellent. Well done! Don't forget, keep saying "ISLAM IS A RELIGION OF PEACE" over and over. Now for the final step. Lean even a little more forward until you can see your buttohole. Now shove your head right in there, all the way! Take a selfie and send it to your Mayor, Governor and your Congressperson and Senator. This is an act of solidarity! Tell them that you have finally figured out how it was that they came to believe that "ISLAM IS A RELIGION OF PEACE".

Warning! Don't pull your head out or you might start questioning that "ISLAM IS A RELIGION OF PEACE". Keep it right up in there.

I hear that Christianity is the religion of Love. As my friends remind me "God is Love" I dont think the ME has been feeling that Love for some time. In addition, I would maintain that we here in the USA have not been feeling that Love for some while.

Lot of innuendo in this article, short on proofs. For instance, it's supposed BLM ties to terrorist training:

Given that it is common knowledge Saudi and UAE state groups use educational programs as a way to radicalize youth and infect them with the Wahabbist ideology that breeds terrorism, what exactly is this program BLM is partnering with? Does it involve religious teaching? More research and demands for clarification from Black Lives Matter is needed to clarify that American youth are not intentionally being exposed to state agents who are radicalizing them.

If you look at the uvconsultants website, it is clearly a professional consultancy, training people to basically, make the most of themselves. They list their clients which include some multinationals. No terrorism training going on there.

A few factual errors exist as well. The article states that Daniel Pearl was killed on his way to meet Gilani in Iraq, while he was to meet him at a restaurant in Karachi Pakistan. Although the killing was explicitly claimed by the main Al Qaeda faction in Pakistan, the article asserts, in an attempt to link the Pearl killing to ISIS, that the murder was the work of Al Qaeda in Iraq, the precursor to ISIS.

There is a lot of useful information here, but when I see obvious factual errors used to prove a connection where none exists, I get a little suspicious.

Everything is on George Webbs videos. If you haven't watched any, you should. He identifies the crime, which usually involves the Clintons, then puts the evidence together.

This guy is getting a huge following because he is spot on. What's happening now is that when he publishes a video, his followers add links to other supporting documents, so the case he is building is getting better everyday. Seriously, if the police arrested everyone George Webb has put the finger on, there would be nobody left in the Senate, lots of Generals from the army identified for being on the take, and CIA, FBI all involved along the line.

"Webb was found dead in his Carmichael home on December 10, 2004 with two gunshot wounds to the head. His death was ruled suicide by the Sacramento County coroner's office."

2 gunshots to the head....
